Chapter 16: Turning Tides: 11th and 12th Centuries

Subject	Social Science (NCERT Class 7)
Chapter	16 — Turning Tides: 11th and 12th Centuries
Total Questions	60 (Multiple Choice, single correct)
Maximum Marks	240
Suggested Time	90 minutes

Marking scheme: +4 for each correct answer · -1 for each wrong answer · 0 if unattempted.

Instructions: Each question has four options (A), (B), (C), (D); exactly one is correct. Watch the classic traps: Mahmud of Ghazni only RAIDED for plunder and withdrew (about 17 times), he did NOT rule India - lasting rule began later with the Ghurids; raiding for loot and conquering to govern are different; NOT all of India fell (the south - Cholas, Kakatiyas, Hoysalas - and much of the north stayed free); the age was NOT only war (al-Biruni, Bhaskaracharya, Ramanuja, Basava, great temples); and al-Biruni studied India deeply (two-way learning). Keep the Tarain battles straight: Ghuri lost the First (1191), won the Second (1192). Do not write on this paper — mark answers on your answer sheet.

- The 11th and 12th centuries are called a 'turning point' because:
(A) India was completely peaceful with no invasions
(B) Turkic invasions penetrated far deeper into India than the earlier Arab raids
(C) the Guptas rose to power again (D) the Arabs first reached India
 - Compared with the earlier Arab raids, the Turkic invasions of this period:
(A) reached much further into the subcontinent
(B) never crossed into India (C) stayed only in Sindh like the Arabs
(D) were purely peaceful trade missions
 - Despite the invasions, the chapter stresses that this period's lesson is one of:
(A) total and permanent defeat
(B) resilience and the enduring power of knowledge
(C) the end of all Indian culture (D) complete foreign rule over all India
 - The 'Khyber Pass' was important because it:
(A) was a sea route to Sri Lanka (B) lay deep in the Tamil south
(C) was a Chola naval base

(D) was a major pass through the mountains, long used as a trade and invasion route into India

- 5. The Hindu Shahis are remembered in this period as a power that:
- (A) ruled the Tamil far south
 - (B) built Angkor Wat in Cambodia
 - (C) guarded the north-western approaches against the early Turkic invaders
 - (D) founded the Delhi Sultanate
- 6. Invaders repeatedly entering India through the north-west shows the region was:
- (A) completely sealed off by the sea
 - (B) India's safest frontier
 - (C) a southern coastal port
 - (D) a recurring gateway for invasions, like the Khyber Pass
- 7. Mahmud of Ghazni is remembered for leading about:
- (A) a single peaceful trade mission
 - (B) the building of Nalanda
 - (C) 17 plundering raids into India
 - (D) the founding of the Chola navy
- 8. A famous temple destroyed during Mahmud of Ghazni's raids was:
- (A) Angkor Wat
 - (B) Brihadishvara
 - (C) Somnath
 - (D) the Anubhava mandapa
- 9. The claim 'Mahmud of Ghazni conquered and ruled India' is wrong because he:
- (A) only raided India for plunder and withdrew each time
 - (B) founded the Delhi Sultanate and ruled for life
 - (C) never actually reached India
 - (D) ruled all of south India
- 10. 'Booty' or 'plunder', which Mahmud's raids carried off, means:
- (A) a peace treaty between kings
 - (B) a school of philosophy
 - (C) a kind of temple tower
 - (D) valuable goods seized by force during a raid or war
- 11. Mahmud's repeated raids, followed each time by withdrawal, are best described as:
- (A) building a lasting empire in India
 - (B) raiding for treasure rather than conquering to govern
 - (C) peaceful pilgrimages
 - (D) naval expeditions overseas
- 12. The key difference between Mahmud of Ghazni and the later Ghurids was that Mahmud:
- (A) came to rule, while the Ghurids only raided
 - (B) raided for loot and left, while the Ghurids came to stay and rule
 - (C) built temples, while the Ghurids destroyed them by accident
 - (D) never reached India, while the Ghurids did
- 13. 'Raiding for loot' and 'conquering to govern' are different because:

- (A) they mean exactly the same thing (B) a raider always builds an empire
- (C) a raider seizes treasure and leaves, while a conqueror stays to rule the land
- (D) a conqueror never keeps the land

14. Lasting foreign rule in north India began with:

- (A) Mahmud of Ghazni's first raid (B) the Chola navy
- (C) the Ghurids and their generals, not Mahmud of Ghazni
- (D) the scholar al-Biruni

15. Al-Biruni is best described as a:

- (A) scholar who learned Sanskrit and studied India deeply
- (B) Turkic general who destroyed Nalanda
- (C) Chola admiral
- (D) Tamil poet-saint

16. The claim 'foreign scholars like al-Biruni came only with the armies and learned nothing from India' is wrong because al-Biruni:

- (A) refused to learn Sanskrit (B) destroyed all Indian books
- (C) never wrote anything
- (D) studied India's mathematics, astronomy, religion and customs and wrote a careful book about the country

17. The chapter calls this 'an age of two-way learning' because:

- (A) only India learned, never sharing anything
- (B) no learning happened at all
- (C) learning flowed only into India
- (D) foreign scholars studied India while Indian science (like its sine tables) also travelled outward

18. That al-Biruni wrote a careful book about India shows that, even amid invasions:

- (A) all learning had stopped (B) Indians knew nothing worth studying
- (C) books were never written
- (D) serious scholarship and curiosity about India continued

19. Indian 'sine tables' travelling outward to shape mathematics elsewhere is an example of:

- (A) India only ever borrowing from others
- (B) mathematics being unknown in India
- (C) India contributing knowledge to the wider world
- (D) learning that never left India

20. Bhaskaracharya is remembered as a great Indian:

- (A) Turkic invader (B) Chola admiral
- (C) temple-builder only (D) mathematician and astronomer

21. The survival of scholars like Bhaskaracharya during this period shows that Indian science:

- (A) completely disappeared
- (B) endured and kept advancing despite the invasions
- (C) was invented only by foreigners
- (D) never existed at all

22. 'Algebra' takes its name from the Arabic 'al-jabr', meaning:

- (A) 'the cosmic mountain'
- (B) 'a fighting fleet of ships'
- (C) 'reunion of broken parts', the title of al-Khwarizmi's book
- (D) 'a short Kannada poem'

23. 'Trigonometry', vital to astronomy, is the mathematics of:

- (A) temple towers
- (B) triangles and angles
- (C) fighting ships
- (D) Kannada poetry

24. The Kakatiyas, who flourished in the Deccan, are linked to the decorative stone gateway called a:

- (A) vimana over a shrine
- (B) torana, as built at Warangal
- (C) sabha assembly
- (D) samanta vassal

25. The Hoysalas, like the Kakatiyas, were a power of the:

- (A) far north-west, founding the Sultanate
- (B) Central Asian steppe
- (C) Deccan and the south, which flourished during this period
- (D) Arab lands of Sindh

26. That the Kakatiyas and Hoysalas built great works in the south shows that, while the north faced invasions:

- (A) all of India had fallen to invaders
- (B) the south remained free and flourishing
- (C) the south was empty of kingdoms
- (D) the south was ruled from Ghazni

27. Rajaraja Chola I is remembered as a:

- (A) Turkic raider of Somnath
- (B) master of the seas who built Chola naval power
- (C) Ghurid general
- (D) Kannada poet-saint

28. A 'navy', which the Cholas built powerfully, is:

- (A) a decorative stone gateway
- (B) a hall for exchanging ideas
- (C) a cosmic mountain
- (D) a country's fighting ships and the sailors who crew them

29. The great Chola temple linked to Rajaraja I, with a soaring tower (vimana), is the:

- (A) Somnath temple
- (B) Nalanda university
- (C) Brihadishvara temple
- (D) Angkor Wat

30. Rajendra Chola I is famous for a naval expedition to:

- (A) the Khyber Pass
- (B) Ghazni
- (C) Srivijaya, in Southeast Asia
- (D) Kannauj

- 31. Rajendra Chola I's naval expedition overseas shows that the Cholas were:
(A) a strong sea power reaching far across the Indian Ocean
(B) a landlocked kingdom with no ships (C) a Turkic invading force
(D) rulers of Ghazni
- 32. The Cholas' naval reach to Srivijaya, while the north faced invasions, again shows that:
(A) all India had fallen to the Turks (B) the Cholas served the Ghurids
(C) the sea was useless to India
(D) south India flourished independently in this period
- 33. The Paramaras are linked to the scholar-king:
(A) Bhoja (B) Prithviraj Chauhan
(C) Muhammad Ghuri (D) Rajendra Chola I
- 34. Calling Bhoja a 'scholar-king' means he:
(A) combined ruling with a love of learning and scholarship
(B) never ruled at all (C) was a foreign invader
(D) led the Chola navy
- 35. The Ghurids were led by:
(A) Muhammad Ghuri (B) Mahmud of Ghazni
(C) Rajaraja Chola I (D) al-Biruni
- 36. At the First Battle of Tarain (1191), Muhammad Ghuri:
(A) defeated Prithviraj Chauhan (B) was defeated by Prithviraj Chauhan
(C) conquered all of India (D) destroyed Nalanda
- 37. At the Second Battle of Tarain (1192), Muhammad Ghuri:
(A) defeated Prithviraj Chauhan, opening the way to lasting rule
(B) was again defeated and went home for good
(C) was helped by the Cholas (D) destroyed Somnath
- 38. The Indian king defeated at the Second Battle of Tarain was:
(A) Prithviraj Chauhan (B) Rajaraja Chola I
(C) Bhoja (D) Harshavardhana
- 39. Which sequence of the Tarain battles is correct?
(A) Ghuri won the First (1191), then lost the Second (1192)
(B) both battles were won by Prithviraj
(C) Ghuri lost the First Battle (1191), then won the Second (1192)
(D) both battles were fought at sea
- 40. The shift 'from plunder to rule' in this period means invaders moved from:

- (A) raiding for treasure to staying and governing the land
- (B) governing to merely raiding
- (C) trading peacefully to fighting
- (D) ruling the south to ruling Ghazni

41. Qutb-ud-din Aibak, a general of Muhammad Ghuri, is known for:

- (A) leading the Chola navy
- (B) founding the Delhi Sultanate
- (C) writing on algebra
- (D) building Angkor Wat

42. A 'Sultanate' is:

- (A) a decorative stone gateway
- (B) the territory or rule of a sultan
- (C) a Buddhist monastery
- (D) a short Kannada poem

43. The general Bakhtiyar Khilji is remembered for:

- (A) founding the Chola navy
- (B) writing the Rajatarangini
- (C) building Brihadishvara
- (D) destroying the great universities of Nalanda and Vikramashila

44. The destruction of Nalanda and Vikramashila was a serious blow because they were:

- (A) Chola naval bases
- (B) Turkic forts
- (C) great centres of learning and Buddhist universities
- (D) Tamil trading ports

45. Ramanujacharya was a thinker-saint who taught the philosophy of:

- (A) that the world is completely unreal
- (B) that ritual sacrifice alone frees the soul
- (C) that there are no gods at all
- (D) Vishishtadvaita - that the world and souls are real, with bhakti and surrender as the path to liberation

46. Basavanna founded the movement known as:

- (A) the Delhi Sultanate
- (B) the Lingayat movement, rejecting caste and ritual and teaching devotion and equality
- (C) the Chola navy
- (D) the Tripartite Struggle

47. A 'vachana' is:

- (A) a decorative gateway
- (B) a temple tower
- (C) a short Kannada poem, used by Basavanna to share his vision
- (D) a fighting ship

48. The 'Anubhava mandapa' set up by Basavanna was:

- (A) a Chola warship
- (B) a Turkic fort
- (C) a temple destroyed by Mahmud
- (D) a hall where people of all backgrounds met to exchange ideas

49. That Basavanna's Lingayat movement rejected caste and welcomed all to the Anubhava mandapa shows it valued:

- (A) equality and the open exchange of ideas
- (B) strict caste divisions
- (C) rule by a single sultan
- (D) conquest of the south

50. Ramanuja and Basava together show that, amid the invasions, India also produced:

- (A) no religious thought at all
- (B) only war and destruction
- (C) foreign rulers only
- (D) influential new thinkers and devotional movements

51. The temples of Khajuraho and Brihadishvara are evidence that this period was:

- (A) rich in temple art and architecture
- (B) empty of any building
- (C) only about warfare
- (D) ruled entirely from Ghazni

52. Cambodia's Angkor Wat, linked in the chapter to India's cultural reach, has five towers symbolising:

- (A) the five oceans
- (B) five Turkic generals
- (C) Mount Meru, the cosmic mountain
- (D) five Chola kings

53. That Angkor Wat in Cambodia reflects Indian ideas shows India's:

- (A) conquest and rule of Cambodia
- (B) cultural reach extending far beyond its own borders
- (C) complete isolation from abroad
- (D) lack of any temples

54. A 'vimana' is:

- (A) a fighting ship
- (B) a decorative gateway
- (C) a short Kannada poem
- (D) the tall tower built over the main shrine of a South Indian temple

55. The grand temples at home and India's influence on Angkor Wat together show that, in this period, India was:

- (A) a thriving centre of art whose culture spread abroad
- (B) artistically barren
- (C) cut off from the world
- (D) ruled entirely by foreigners

56. The claim 'the whole of India fell to the Turkic invaders in this period' is wrong because:

- (A) there were no invaders at all
- (B) the invaders conquered every region
- (C) only the south was invaded
- (D) much of north India and all of south India stayed free, with the Cholas, Kakatiyas and Hoysalas flourishing

57. The claim 'this period was only about war and destruction' is wrong because it also produced:

- (A) great scholars, thinker-saints and magnificent temples
- (B) nothing but ruins
- (C) no learning of any kind
- (D) only foreign rulers

58. Which pairing of invader and action is correct?

- (A) Mahmud of Ghazni came to rule; Muhammad Ghuri only raided
- (B) both only raided and left
- (C) Mahmud of Ghazni raided for plunder; Muhammad Ghuri came to rule
- (D) both founded the Chola navy

59. Which sequence is in correct chronological order (earliest first)?

- (A) Mahmud of Ghazni's raids, then the First Battle of Tarain (1191), then the Second Battle of Tarain (1192)
- (B) Second Tarain (1192), then First Tarain (1191), then Mahmud's raids
- (C) First Tarain (1191), then Mahmud's raids, then Second Tarain (1192)
- (D) Mahmud's raids, then Second Tarain (1192), then First Tarain (1191)

60. A student says, 'Mahmud of Ghazni ruled all of India, and the whole subcontinent fell while nothing was created.' The best correction is:

- (A) all three statements are correct
- (B) Mahmud only raided, much of India stayed free, and the age produced great scholars, saints and temples
- (C) Mahmud ruled India but the south stayed free
- (D) nothing at all was created in this period

Worked Solutions

1. (B) The period saw Turkic invasions reaching much deeper than the earlier Arab raids, a major turning point. India was not peaceful, the Guptas had long gone, and the Arabs had arrived centuries earlier.

2. (A) Turkic invasions penetrated far deeper than the Arab raids that had been confined near Sindh. They did cross into India, went beyond Sindh, and were not peaceful trade.

3. (B) The period's lesson is resilience and the lasting power of knowledge, with scholars, saints and temples flourishing. It was not total defeat, the end of culture, or all-India foreign rule.

4. (D) The Khyber Pass through the Hindu Kush served as both trade and invasion route into India. It was not a sea route, southern, or a Chola base.

5. (C) The Hindu Shahis defended the north-western frontier against early Turkic invaders. They did not rule the south, build Angkor Wat, or found the Sultanate.

- 6. (D) The north-west, with passes like the Khyber, was again a gateway for invaders. It was not sea-sealed, the safest frontier, or a southern port.
- 7. (C) Mahmud of Ghazni led about 17 plundering raids. He did not make a peaceful trade mission, build Nalanda, or found the Chola navy.
- 8. (C) Mahmud's raids destroyed the Somnath temple. Angkor Wat (Cambodia), Brihadishvara (Chola) and the Anubhava mandapa (Basava's hall) were not destroyed by him.
- 9. (A) Mahmud raided about 17 times for plunder and withdrew each time; he did not rule India. The Sultanate came later under others, he did reach India, and he did not rule the south.
- 10. (D) Booty or plunder is goods seized by force in war. It is not a treaty, a philosophy, or a temple tower (a vimana).
- 11. (B) Mahmud raided for treasure and returned home, not building a lasting empire. It was not empire-building, pilgrimage, or naval expedition.
- 12. (B) Mahmud raided and withdrew; the Ghurids came to stay and govern, founding lasting rule. The reversal, the temple claim and the 'never reached India' option are wrong.
- 13. (C) A raider takes loot and leaves; a conqueror stays to rule - very different. They are not the same, raiders need not build empires, and conquerors do keep land.
- 14. (C) Lasting foreign rule began with the Ghurids and generals like Aibak, not Mahmud's raids. The Chola navy and al-Biruni were not foreign rulers of north India.
- 15. (A) Al-Biruni was a scholar who learned Sanskrit and studied India's sciences, religion and customs. He was not a general, an admiral, or a poet-saint.
- 16. (D) Al-Biruni learned Sanskrit and wrote a careful study of India, showing deep two-way learning. He did not refuse Sanskrit, destroy books, or write nothing.
- 17. (D) Knowledge flowed both ways: scholars studied India, and Indian science such as sine tables spread outward. It was not one-way or absent.
- 18. (D) Al-Biruni's careful study shows scholarship continued amid the storms. Learning had not stopped, India had much worth studying, and books were written.
- 19. (C) Indian sine tables spreading abroad show India contributing knowledge to the world. It is not pure borrowing, mathematical ignorance, or knowledge that stayed put.
- 20. (D) Bhaskaracharya was a great mathematician and astronomer, showing the endurance of Indian science. He was not an invader, an admiral, or merely a builder.

- 21. (B) Bhaskaracharya shows Indian science endured and advanced despite invasions. It did not vanish, come only from abroad, or never exist.
- 22. (C) Algebra is from Arabic al-jabr ('reunion of broken parts'), al-Khwarizmi's book title. The cosmic mountain is Mount Meru, a fleet is a navy, and a short Kannada poem is a vachana.
- 23. (B) Trigonometry (Greek trigonon 'triangle' + metron 'measure') is the maths of triangles and angles. Temple towers are vimanas, ships make a navy, and Kannada poems are vachanas.
- 24. (B) The Kakatiyas built the torana (decorative gateway) at Warangal. A vimana is a temple tower, a sabha a village assembly, and a samanta a subordinate ruler.
- 25. (C) The Hoysalas were a flourishing southern and Deccan power. They were not north-western Sultanate founders, steppe nomads, or Arabs.
- 26. (B) The thriving Kakatiyas and Hoysalas show the south stayed free and flourishing while the north faced invasions. India had not all fallen, the south had kingdoms, and it was not Ghazni-ruled.
- 27. (B) Rajaraja Chola I built powerful Chola sea power. He was not a Turkic raider, a Ghurid general, or a poet-saint.
- 28. (D) A navy (Latin navis, 'ship') is a country's fighting ships and crews. A gateway is a torana, an ideas-hall the Anubhava mandapa, and the cosmic mountain Mount Meru.
- 29. (C) Rajaraja I built the Brihadishvara temple with its towering vimana. Somnath was raided by Mahmud, Nalanda was a university, and Angkor Wat is in Cambodia.
- 30. (C) Rajendra Chola I led a naval expedition to Srivijaya in Southeast Asia. The Khyber Pass, Ghazni and Kannauj are northern or overland, not naval targets.
- 31. (A) The Srivijaya expedition shows the Cholas as a far-reaching sea power. They were not landlocked, Turkic invaders, or rulers of Ghazni.
- 32. (D) Chola sea power reaching Srivijaya shows the south flourishing independently. India had not all fallen, the Cholas were not Ghurid servants, and the sea was vital.
- 33. (A) The Paramaras are linked to the scholar-king Bhoja. Prithviraj Chauhan, Muhammad Ghuri and Rajendra Chola were other figures.
- 34. (A) A scholar-king like Bhoja ruled while championing learning. He was not a non-ruler, a foreign invader, or a Chola admiral.

- 35. (A) The Ghurids were led by Muhammad Ghuri. Mahmud of Ghazni led the earlier Ghaznavid raids; Rajaraja was a Chola and al-Biruni a scholar.
- 36. (B) Ghuri lost the First Battle of Tarain (1191) to Prithviraj Chauhan. He won the Second (1192); he did not conquer all India at Tarain, and Nalanda was destroyed by Bakhtiyar Khilji.
- 37. (A) Ghuri won the Second Battle of Tarain (1192), defeating Prithviraj Chauhan and opening the way to lasting rule. He was not defeated, Chola-helped, or the destroyer of Somnath (that was Mahmud).
- 38. (A) Prithviraj Chauhan was defeated at the Second Battle of Tarain (1192). Rajaraja Chola, Bhoja and Harshavardhana were other rulers.
- 39. (C) Ghuri lost the First Battle of Tarain (1191) and won the Second (1192). The reversal, the 'Prithviraj won both' and the 'at sea' options are wrong.
- 40. (A) 'From plunder to rule' marks the shift from raiding for treasure (Mahmud) to staying to govern (the Ghurids). It is not the reverse, a peace-to-war shift, or about Ghazni.
- 41. (B) Aibak founded the Delhi Sultanate. He did not lead the Chola navy, write on algebra, or build Angkor Wat.
- 42. (B) A sultanate is the rule or territory of a sultan (an Arabic word for 'authority'). A gateway is a torana, a monastery a vihara, and a Kannada poem a vachana.
- 43. (D) Bakhtiyar Khilji destroyed Nalanda and Vikramashila. He did not found the Chola navy, write the Rajatarangini, or build Brihadishvara.
- 44. (C) Nalanda and Vikramashila were great Buddhist universities, so their destruction was a heavy loss to learning. They were not naval bases, forts, or trading ports.
- 45. (D) Ramanuja's Vishishtadvaita holds the world and souls real, with bhakti and surrender as the path. It does not say the world is unreal, that sacrifice alone frees, or that there are no gods.
- 46. (B) Basavanna founded the Lingayat movement, rejecting caste and ritual and teaching devotion, honest work and equality. It was not a sultanate, a navy, or the Tripartite Struggle.
- 47. (C) A vachana is a short Kannada poem; Basavanna used vachanas to express his spiritual and ethical vision. A gateway is a torana, a tower a vimana, and a ship part of a navy.
- 48. (D) The Anubhava mandapa was Basavanna's hall in Kalyani where people of all backgrounds exchanged ideas. It was not a warship, a fort, or a destroyed temple.

- 49. (A) The Lingayats rejected caste and welcomed all, valuing equality and open dialogue. They did not uphold caste, sultan-rule, or conquest.
- 50. (D) Ramanuja and Basava show vibrant new religious thought during the period. It was not thought-free, only war, or foreigners-only.
- 51. (A) Khajuraho and Brihadishvara show the era's rich temple art. It was not building-free, only war, or Ghazni-ruled.
- 52. (C) Angkor Wat's five towers symbolise Mount Meru, the cosmic mountain. They do not stand for oceans, generals, or Chola kings.
- 53. (B) Angkor Wat shows India's cultural influence reaching far abroad, peacefully. It was not conquest, isolation, or a sign of no temples.
- 54. (D) A vimana is the tall tower over a South Indian temple's main shrine. A ship is part of a navy, a gateway a torana, and a Kannada poem a vachana.
- 55. (A) Great temples at home and influence abroad show India as a thriving, outward-reaching cultural centre. It was not barren, cut off, or wholly foreign-ruled.
- 56. (D) Large parts of the north and all the south stayed free, with southern powers flourishing. There were invaders, but they did not conquer everything, and it was the north that mainly faced them.
- 57. (A) The age also produced al-Biruni and Bhaskaracharya, Ramanuja and Basava, and temples from Khajuraho to Angkor Wat. It was not only ruins, learning-free, or foreigners-only.
- 58. (C) Mahmud raided for plunder and left; Ghuri came to stay and rule. The reversal, the 'both only raided' and the 'Chola navy' options are wrong.
- 59. (A) Mahmud's raids came first (early 11th century), then the First (1191) and Second (1192) Battles of Tarain. The other orders scramble these.
- 60. (B) Mahmud only raided (the Ghurids ruled later), much of India remained free, and the age was rich in scholarship, devotion and temple art - correcting all three errors. The other options keep one or more misconceptions.
